

Attention FDA

It came to my attention that the FDA is being asked to take away my right to sign a medical waiver before purchasing a hearing aid. Instead I would be forced to have a medical exam or hearing test. Here's my views and/or experiences on several related questions?

1. Should I be forced to have a medical exam and/or hearing test before purchasing a hearing aid? If so, should the FDA pay for the exam?

On the first purchase yes to determine if there is damage or some thing that can be corrected but after that absolutely not & all insurance should pay for hearing v's & eye exams to for all ages

2. Some people are physically unable to drive to a doctor or hearing specialist, or have had bad experiences they don't want to repeat. For instance ...

Most patients know what's wrong & only go to the doctor for a prescription for what they need such as antibiotics, P meds, etc. There are too many mis-diagnosis due to overwhelming pt loads so be a hurry on the mil's part

3. Should the FDA take away my Constitutional Right, affirmed by the Supreme Court, to decide for myself my medical exams and treatment?

No we have a few rights & too damn many regulations now - my patient rights say I can accept or refuse any treatment or meds that I want to & can accept or reject any form of care needs to be upheld.

4. Should I be allowed to purchase hearing aids by mail as I choose?

If I pay for them or meds too I should be allowed under the Constitution to buy my thing I want & clean necessary in my own case, so that I do not become dependent on other types of care & go without what I need for a living.
